

Gemma was appointed to the Governing Body as a co-opted governor in September 2017. She lives in Oxspring with her husband and two children who attend Oxspring Primary School. Gemma is employed part-time as an A-Level Business and Economics teacher at a local college.

Gemma joined the governing body at Oxspring Primary School after being a member of the school's Vision working party in 2016. She enjoyed this opportunity to work alongside pupils, staff, parents and governors, hearing their opinions on the school's vision, and the direction they saw the school taking in future.

Gemma became a governor in order to celebrate the achievements of the pupils, recognise the work of the staff and help strengthen Oxspring Primary School's reputation in the community.
